

RUNWAY REPORT

The most significant aviation headlines from last week.

SILVERHAWK
AVIATION EXECUTIVE

ISSUE #1 | WEEK OF APRIL 7, 2025

FAA Enacts New Privacy Laws for Private Aircraft Owners

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) enacted legislation allowing private aircraft owners, including high-profile individuals like Elon Musk and Taylor Swift, to conceal their flight information from public access.

This move aims to enhance security and privacy for private aircraft owners.

Read More >>

NEW REGULATION

FAA Issues New Guidance on Runway Safety

Following a tragic midair collision near Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport that resulted in 67 fatalities, the FAA has suspended certain helicopter routes and introduced new safety measures.

Flash forward two weeks: the FAA has released new guidance aimed at reducing runway incursions, focusing on improved communication and situational awareness for pilots and air traffic controllers.

Read More >>

Archer Aviation & United Airlines

Archer recently secured a multi-million dollar payment from United as part of their broader $1 billion conditional purchase agreement. This marks growing confidence in Archer's Midnight aircraft, aimed at urban air mobility. Read More >>

Airbus Wins Amidst Supply Challenges

Airbus delivered approximately 70 jets in March 2025, marking an 11% increase compared to the same month the previous year. Despite this growth, the company remains behind its ambitious annual target, citing engine supply shortages as a contributing factor. Read More >>

www.SilverhawkAviation.net

208-453-8577

4505 Aviation Way, Caldwell ID 83605

JOB MARKET

SkyWest Airlines Announces Significant Regional Hiring Push

SkyWest Airlines has announced a significant hiring push for pilots and maintenance technicians to support its expanding regional network. Read More >>

United Airlines Expanding Pilot Training Program, Partnering with Flight Schools

United Airlines is significantly expanding its Aviate pilot training program to address the ongoing pilot shortage. This expansion includes increased funding and partnerships with flight schools. Read More >>

New Regulations: Updates to Pilot Medical Certification

The FAA has published updates to pilot medical certification requirements, focusing on streamlining the process for certain medical conditions. Read More >>

Steady Demand for Piston and Turboprop Aircraft - 2024 Report

The General Aviation Manufacturers Association (GAMA) Q1, 2024 Shipments Report shows a steady demand for piston and turboprop aircraft, with slight variations across different segments. GAMA's report also shows a steady incline in aircraft availability and pricing. Read More >>

RUNWAY REPORT

Weekly Aviation News For Aviation Enthusiasts

2

NEW TECHNOLOGY

Archer Aviation Secures FAA Special Airworthiness Certificate for Aircraft

Archer Aviation has received a Special Airworthiness Certificate from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) for its Midnight electric vertical takeoff and landing (eVTOL) aircraft. This is a significant milestone, allowing Archer to begin flight testing. Read More >>

Bye Aerospace Receives New Investment for eFlyer Development

Bye Aerospace, developing the eFlyer family of electric aircraft, has secured new investment to accelerate its certification and production efforts. Read More >>

Got suggestions or stories? Email me at Brandon@silverhawkaviation.net